

WREATH GETS BEATING INSTEAD OF $500 DEBT
 Victim of Assault Says Men Hit Him With Blackjack

Philip Boltak, of Moorestown, N. J., attempted to collect a two-year-old debt of $500 yesterday morning, and was badly beaten by three men, who were later arrested by police.

Boltak, who lives in the neighborhood of Tanager streets shortly after 12 o'clock noon.

With the aid of another policeman

Greenberg arrested the men, who said they were Peter Swered, of 1014 Melon street; Ignatz Garosh and Samuel Dolbick, both of 2422 South Mildred street. At the Third and Dickinson streets station house Boltak told of his troubles.

According to his story, he lent the men $500 in Bethlehem two years ago. Soon the group separated and he moved to Moorestown. Learning that the men were in this city, he came here last week and took a room at 509 South Third street.

After much trouble, he said, he got into communication with the three men, who promised to have the money for him yesterday morning if he would meet them at Fifth and Tanager streets. As he approached that point Boltak saw the men sitting in an automobile. He said they surrounded him and hit him on the head with a blackjack.

Heads Lutheran Deaconesses
 At the Mary J. Drexel Home, Twenty-second street and Glister avenue, yesterday afternoon, Sister Julia Mergner was inducted into the office of the directing sister of the Lutheran deaconesses of the motherhouse, and seven young women were formally consecrated to the deaconesses' work.
